LET'S GET TO KNOW WHITMORE GALLERY

Jill Whitmore creates sophisticated, fused glass and multimedia art for collectors around the globe. Whitmore is the descendant of a long line of noted American artists, including her great uncle Maxwell Coburn "Coby" Whitmore, one of the leading illustrators of the mid-twentieth century as well as her grandfather Robert Houston Whitmore, a painter whose work is included in the Library of Congress. Jill's journey to becoming a professional artist started in Seattle nearly 30 years ago when she began experimenting with various genres of acrylic on canvas.

An abstract expressionist at heart, Jill's glass art, and multimedia installations are found in private homes and commercial buildings from coast to coast and as far away as India and Japan, while thousands globally collect her stunning wearable art.

Born in Dayton, Ohio, Jill has a Bachelor of Arts from the Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies at the University of Washington in Comparative Religions of the World with an emphasis on art and symbolism in world architecture. This background inspires her expression of spirituality, joy, and nature in her unique work.

In 2022, Jill returned to South Central Colorado, where she finds inspiration and "visual joy" in the majestic Sangre de Cristo mountains and the ever-changing landscapes of the high desert. The colors and beauty of the Southwest shine through in her unique, multimedia art; everything from large wall pieces of pure kiln-fired layers of glass, to the alchemy of glass and acrylic on canvas, and innovative new wearable collections each season. "My hope is that my work inspires happiness and that the joy of creating is communicated to those who view or collect my pieces."

Her work may be viewed and purchased online and by appointment at her studio in La Veta, Colorado. Always creating unique pieces and often working on special commissions which she loves to portray for her clients, Jill can be reached by email, phone, and on both Facebook and Instagram @whitmoregallery.
